THE MODERN SOCIAL SYSTEM Vs. THE ISLAMIC SOCIAL SYSTEM

Nuha Maryam Chakwa

II B.A. English

The Modern Social System is two-dimensional. The "Rights" and the "Duties". This system lays emphasis only on "Rights" and leaves out on "Duties" which becomes the root cause for social imbalance and social evils. For the smooth run of a society we need to focus not only on both Rights and Duties but there must another dimension called "Prohibitions". And the Islamic Social System is three-dimensional consisting of all the three dimensions:

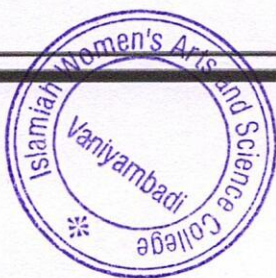

- Rights
- Duties
- Prohibitions

The Islamic Social System can be called as "The Islamic Socio-legal System".

Unlike the Modern Social System, Islamic Socio-legal System lays equal emphasis on Rights, Duties and Prohibitions. All three dimensions must go hand in hand and if not, then there is a high chance of getting our society in trouble. The example is in front of our eyes, as we see, today our society is following the Modern Social System which has caused so much chaos. People are concerned about the rights which are not given to them and are ill-bothered about the duties which obliges upon them as a member of society and they are not aware of the prohibitions which, if practiced will damage the morality and harmony of the society.

In Islamic Socio-legal System equal emphasis is given to individuals, family and society and none of these three tiers of society is left out. All these are aimed at ensuring a peaceful and healthy living - both in this world and in the hereafter.

As we talk about equality and the rights, we need to ponder upon the idea of Islamic Socio-legal System as it provides solution to all the social problems. There are huge differences between The Modern Social System and The Islamic Socio-legal System and we may discuss upon the idea till we reach its horizon but my aim is just to fuel your souls for the pondering-over of how we can achieve a peaceful and harmonious society.

POETRY ON LIFE

P. SUHA MANAAL
II B.Sc. IDD

Life is happiness spent cherishing,
And sadness buried diminishing,
Treasures gained; Battles lost.

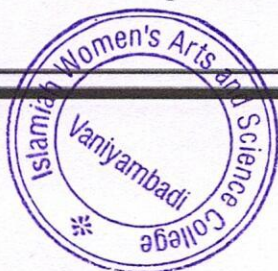

Moments exhausted in perils;
And some in amusing puzzles.
Sometimes you give up only
To come back fierce and strong.

Life's a journey, a test, a trial to face;
A race, each is compelled to embrace.

MY INNER VOICE

ALMAS JABEEN M A
II B.C.A.

The doors of freedom were locked,
But my mind remained open.
Fighting for my name,
That left them unspoken...
Accepting faith,
Built bit by bit with hard work.
Rejected twice, I'm ready for third,
Cause I'm a fearless bird!!
Rest in peace, my anxiety, cause you're absurd....

DAD

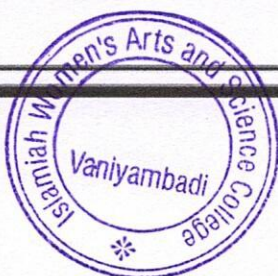

KINZA SHAKEEL
I BA English

A person who is incomparable,
A person who is adjustable,
A person who rarely cares about himself,
A person who can't bear to give me any wound,
A person who can't see my eyes in tears,
A person who stands by me so I could fight my fears,
That person is my father!
And I am proud to be his daughter!

COME ON, YOU CAN!

THAMANNA C
I B.Sc. Computer Sc.

You can, you should, and if you start, you will!
The only impossible journey is the one you never begin!
Fight for what you believe in, even if you are alone.
You are the youth! You're the leader! You are the one who can!

THE INCORRIGIBLE TALKER

Taskeen Kouser M
II M.A. English

Although every normal woman is an incorrigible speaker and tends to be talkative, able to discuss literally every topic, gossip about things they know and are not aware of, is an inborn trait of women. Many of us have encountered the saying that coins make more noise when they fall, whereas the 'valuable' currency notes make no noise, yet they are considered more significant than the former. This notion has often made the incurable chatterboxes pause for a moment, determined to give up this habit that is majorly opposed. But who are we talking about? 'WOMEN' – who literally have legal copyrights over talking unstoppably.

Our grandmothers, their grandmothers, and so on, have been chatterboxes all their lives. I would say talking is not only our birthright but also a genetically passed trait. Did I say trait? Scratch that... it is a blessing. Indeed, to prove my argument, I must say that talking or talking a lot is no crime. The condition is, 'you should be aware and solely responsible for what you say.' And, to mention, 'talking' is an art, and we women have completed our masters in it – sorry, our Ph.D. in it. It is a talent that men, of course, lack. Mmm... so that proves their jealousy and irritation against talkative women.

I would like to conclude by saying that, my ladies, talking is fine, but always think before you speak. Take charge of the words uttered by you, don't repeat things, and remember that if words can create something beautiful, they also have the power to perish. So, use them wisely. I know we would! You know why? Simply because we are 'THE WOMEN'.

CAN SHE?

Safa Muskan V
II B.C.A.

They say she came with a blueprint of a caretaker,
While He is considered the decision-maker or provider.
They say she's frail and faint,
Doesn't she face death when she gives birth?
They say she's wimpy, incapable, cowardly,
But isn't she a warrior, proficient and fearless.
They say she can't,
She can literally do anything!

SOCIAL MEDIA & CYBER CRIME – USE & PREVENTION

Fariha Tamkeen K
II M.Sc. Computer Science

Social media, widely popular among students, is susceptible to cybercrime, involving the theft of private data through electronic devices. Despite technological benefits, cybercrime, such as unauthorized access and malicious links, poses a threat. Users should exercise caution, avoiding suspicious links and downloads from unknown sources.

People create profiles on social networks like Instagram, Facebook, Twitter, Email, and WhatsApp, with some having numerous friends, including fake profiles. These platforms are often targeted for online threats, stalking, harassment, and identity misuse.

Preventive measures for social media use include:

- Restricting profiles and limiting visibility in public searches
- Avoiding sharing password credentials
- Rejecting unknown requests
- Setting privacy controls to the highest level
- Refraining from clicking on suspicious links or downloading files

It's crucial to be cautious about the information shared, as posts, comments, or statuses may reveal sensitive details. If harmful activity is detected, promptly send a restriction request to the helpdesk.

This path may not be where you wanted to go or roads you wanted to take. But transition can be beautiful in so many ways. These changes, these challenges are not meant to break you. But encourage you and help you grow. Amidst all the changes and all this growth you will find it was worth it all along. One day you will look back and remember this moment, the moment you decided to take the risk and change your life forever.
