MY SPOUSE IS MY COMPANION

Good friends are the most precious treasure that one can possess. A friendship is forged when two people connect on various things and eventually become a support for each other. We cherish different types of relationships in our lives. We make connections and develop relationships because we are surrounded by family. Everyone needs a friend in their life to share good and bad experiences. A friend in need is someone who improves and builds self-confidence.

"I have a Bird in spring Which for myself doth sing ". I have met many people so far in this life, but the person I enjoy remembering the most is my husband, Venkat. He was born and raised in with me. The person who has influenced my life greatly is my husband, the first reason being because of his positive attitude, his intelligence, and the way he expresses his love to me. He is the most gentle, kind and caring man that I have ever met. My ideal man has to be loyal, be tolerant of differences, he has humanity, and be forgiving. He is a man who believes in other people, that people can still be kind. He is a person who attracts good friends with his own values. He has taught me no matter what happens, to never just give up, as long as I give everything my all, I will never be defeated.

He is the most caring man that I have ever known. Being a careful listener is another notable characteristic of my friend. he respects me and he never turn me into his personal maid. He realizes how tired I am with college and work; he offers to help me. He is an honest person who tell me thing that he does not like. He must tell me if we are in a place and he does not like the environment in which we are sharing. He has to be honest and express me alone then we look for a solution.

My ideal husband is a man who understands that I can make mistakes and have triumphs. He is a man who helps me get up when I am down. Patience, you have when teaching them a new skill, the encouragement you give when they feel unsure, and the love you show them when they need it most leave no doubt in my mind that you were made to be a father. As they say, anyone can be a father, but it takes someone special to be a dad—that's you!

As your wife, I couldn't be prouder of the amazing you are to our son. Watching you grow into this role has been one of the greatest joys of my life. You make me proud, not only because you are such an awesome dad, but also because you are an incredible husband, friend, and partner. "He is my friend who understands me, a friendly soul who can add a meaning to my life and to whom I can say -You make My Life simple". True love transcends the unworthy object, and dwells and broods on the eternal, Yet these things may hardly be said without a sort of treachery to the relation. The essence of friendship is entireness, a total magnanimity and trust.

About the book:

The book "MY CONFIDANT" is a compilation of write-ups from many fantastic co-authors based on the theme 'Friendship'. Who doesn't love a friend!? If we tell about our friendship to others even they will get jealous. My Confidant is based on the theme "That one friend you never wanna miss". That one confidant who gives us confident to face the life and the bond we have with that affinity is really beyond infinity. Hope you'll enjoy this book from Writers Corner Publication.
